STUDENT TICKETS

Several students who have suffered the loss of their own or borrowed student enterprize tickets have been aiming severe criticism at the doorkeepers. They do not stop to consider that it is plainly written on the tickets that they are non-transferable and will be taken up if presented by someone other than the name appearing on the card.

For some years past it has been the custom of penurious landladies to allow the hard-working student the privilege of remaining at home to care for the children while they attend the lyceum number or other activity. This is an injustice to those students who are thus imposed upon.

Many other times persons who are not enrolled in the college enjoy the student activities because some of their friends have other attractions at that particular time. This is unfair to students who must pay for their tickets.

There is no difference in getting past the doorkeepers on some one else's ticket and in slipping under the tent at a circus. Students should remember that the doorkeepers are only doing their duty when they confiscate mis-used tickets.

COMMITTEE GETS RESULTS 2/18/32

In an institution such as East Central, there are necessarily several organizations which are essential to the progress and welfare of the school which receive very little credit for their work.

Among these organizations is the committee in charge of the arrangements for lyceum programs and entertainment numbers.

An unusual schedule was presented to the student body during the season just closed, in number, as well as quality and variety of programs.

David Barnett, noted pianist, the Manhattan String Quartet, Miss Gartrude Johnson, reader, Tony Sarg's Marionettes, and several other artists in various fields have entertained East Central students this year.

One of the outstanding achievements of this committee was the program given by Count von Luckner. Due to the fact that he is giving weekly radio programs from New York City, he made only two or three appearances in the west and southwest this session and it was only through special effort that he was engaged by East Central.

This committee certainly deserves special recognition for its work.—Ferdie J. Deering.
